SAN FRANCISCO -- Extreme Pizza has won the Inner City Advisors (ICA) Inner City 100 Award, the company has announced. The award honors businesses that work to improve the inner-city communities where they do business.

Extreme Pizza was ranked No. 70 on the Top 100 list.

"We value the support of the neighborhoods in which we have established stores and recognize that they are a key factor in our success," said Extreme Pizza CEO Todd Parent. "As we expand and continue to open in new locations, we will work to ensure that our business contributes to the growth and success of those surrounding communities."
